In Pursuing

the study of medicine we have learned much; most of all that there is much yet to be learned. Within this volume we have tried to recreate a part of our experiences to hold with us through the years of practice ahead; that we are eternal students of medicine.

THE 1952 CLINIC

JEFFERSON

Dedicates this issue to...

ANTHONY F. DEPALMA, who was caught by the photographer in a period of comparative calm in the picture on the page opposite, tells how in his early youth, he disdained other forms of transportation to run to school from 22nd and Locust to 63rd and Girard, a matter of some five miles. As far as we know, he's been running ever since. Today, however, this pace is maintained with the help of a 1950 Oldsmobile driven at close to breakneck speed between Philadelphia General, Methodist, and Jefferson hospitals, and his office where he usually sees 60 patients in an afternoon.

AFTER THE UNIVERSITY of Maryland he entered Jefferson in 1925. Here he applied himself so assiduously that his roommate, (Dr. Mario Costallo) would invariably have to procure the evening snack so that "Dip's" studying would be uninterrupted. On a night off, however, only the hardest reveler could keep up with Tony.

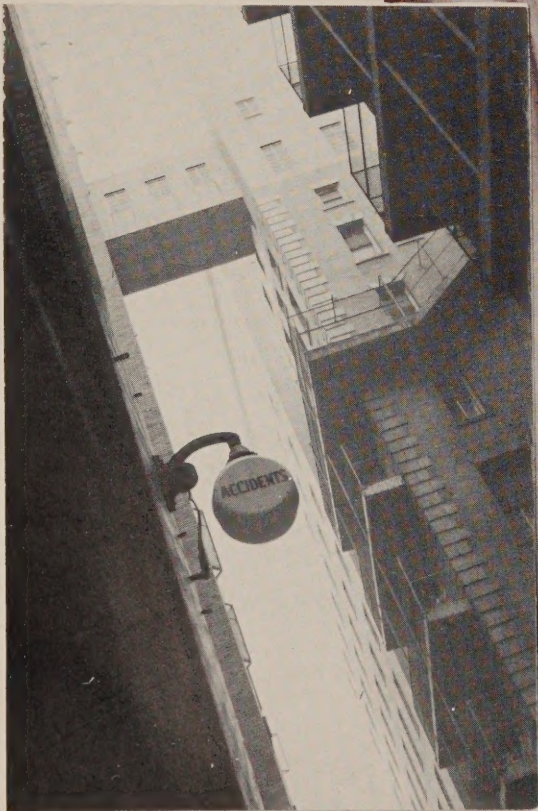

INTERNSHIP AT PHILADELPHIA General was followed by a successful though brief general practice. A feeling of inadequacy in the field of trauma sent him, probably at a dead run, to Trenton and a residency at the New Jersey Orthopedic Hospital. In 1942, he left a thriving practice including five hospital affiliations to serve as chief orthopedic surgeon at Parris Island and then aboard the U.S.S. Rixey where he got first crack at casualties in several major Pacific operations.

IN THE SIX SHORT years since his return to Jefferson, Dr. D. has been appointed full professor, attained national recognition in research, authored several papers and a book, and established himself as a leader in his field. But the man we will always remember will be Tony, a teacher and friend who carried to his work an infectious enthusiasm and patient understanding that has made our relationship with him a most pleasureable experience.

ANTHONY FREDERICK DePALMA, M.D.
James Edwards Professor of Orthopedic Surgery and Head of the Department

... there is always something nice in one's memories of the city at night ... different scenes are recalled ... a street corner where we stood waiting for a 13 or 42 car ... the sight of the doors to the college the night of a lecture ... the characters walking the streets on Saturday nights ... the lights of the surrounding buildings seen from the delivery room suite when we were juniors ... the black wet air just through the window during the many spring nights ... all will be recalled to each, flavored with his own variations of experience.

Progress

ONE OF THE distinctions that Jefferson has always enjoyed as a medical college is the thoroughness of its clinical training. A small hospital was established in conjunction with the College in the first year of its operation. It is believed to be the first hospital in the United States to be owned and operated by a medical college.

Jefferson Medical College Hospital has become the largest voluntary hospital in Pennsylvania and through the Curtis Clinic serves the largest number of outpatients. Despite its present size, however, the hospital's beds are always occupied and the waiting list ranges from 500 to 800 constantly.

This growth has been apparent for years. Some of the contributing factors are: the increase in population, more confidence in hospitals and a greater use of their facilities by all segments of the population; concentration of scientific equipment and personnel, affording doctors more precise diagnoses; trained nursing care and medical attention twenty-four hours a day; the ability of doctors to provide more attention to more patients; hospital insurance plans, coupled with full employment at high wages, and smaller homes with most of the family working, leaving little space for acute illness and nobody to nurse the patient.

When the Thompson Annex was opened in 1924, Jefferson's annual admissions numbered 9,429. Rising steadily, they reached a total of 21,316 in 1951, an increase of 125%. The increase in patients has brought a concurrent strain on laboratories, operating rooms, radiologic services and all other facilities.

Foreseeing the necessity for expansion, Jefferson's trustees have acquired parcels of land, over a period of twenty-five years, on Eleventh Street in the block between Sansom and Walnut, adjoining the present buildings.

Now under construction on this property is a new fourteen-story hospital building which will be one of the most modern in the United States. It will cost about $6,000,000. A public goal of $4,500,000 has been set because about $1,500,000 in institutional funds is available for this project, if necessary. The trustees have accepted a quota of $1,000,000 as their share of the goal and the medical staff and faculty set their goal at $675,000, the highest amount ever undertaken by a hospital staff and representing 15% of the total goal. More than 80% of this amount was subscribed in the first few weeks of the self-conducted campaign of the staff and faculty, a remarkable example of loyalty to Jefferson and a great stimulus to public appreciation of Jefferson's services to the community, the state, and the nation.

In the new building one floor will be devoted to the radiographic laboratories, one floor to clinical laboratories, two floors to surgery with fourteen operating rooms, and one floor to gynecological and obstetrical services. The hospital's architect, Vincent G. Kling, who has designed other Philadelphia hospitals, says that these facilities will be unsurpassed.

The entrance floor of the new building will contain admitting offices, information desk, a lounge and lockers for doctors, the Gift Shop, lunch room, and other facilities suited to this floor.

Above the technical floors are seven nursing floors providing some 300 additional beds which will permit Jefferson to admit approximately 8,500 more patients annually. The fourteenth floor will be a roof terrace.

Clinton Street will be closed off and closed corridors will connect the new building with Thompson Annex which, along with the main hospital, will undergo some alterations to integrate it with services in the new structure.

The new building will devote the tenth floor to the Maternity Department, restoring to the College the teaching floor now occupied by this crowded department.

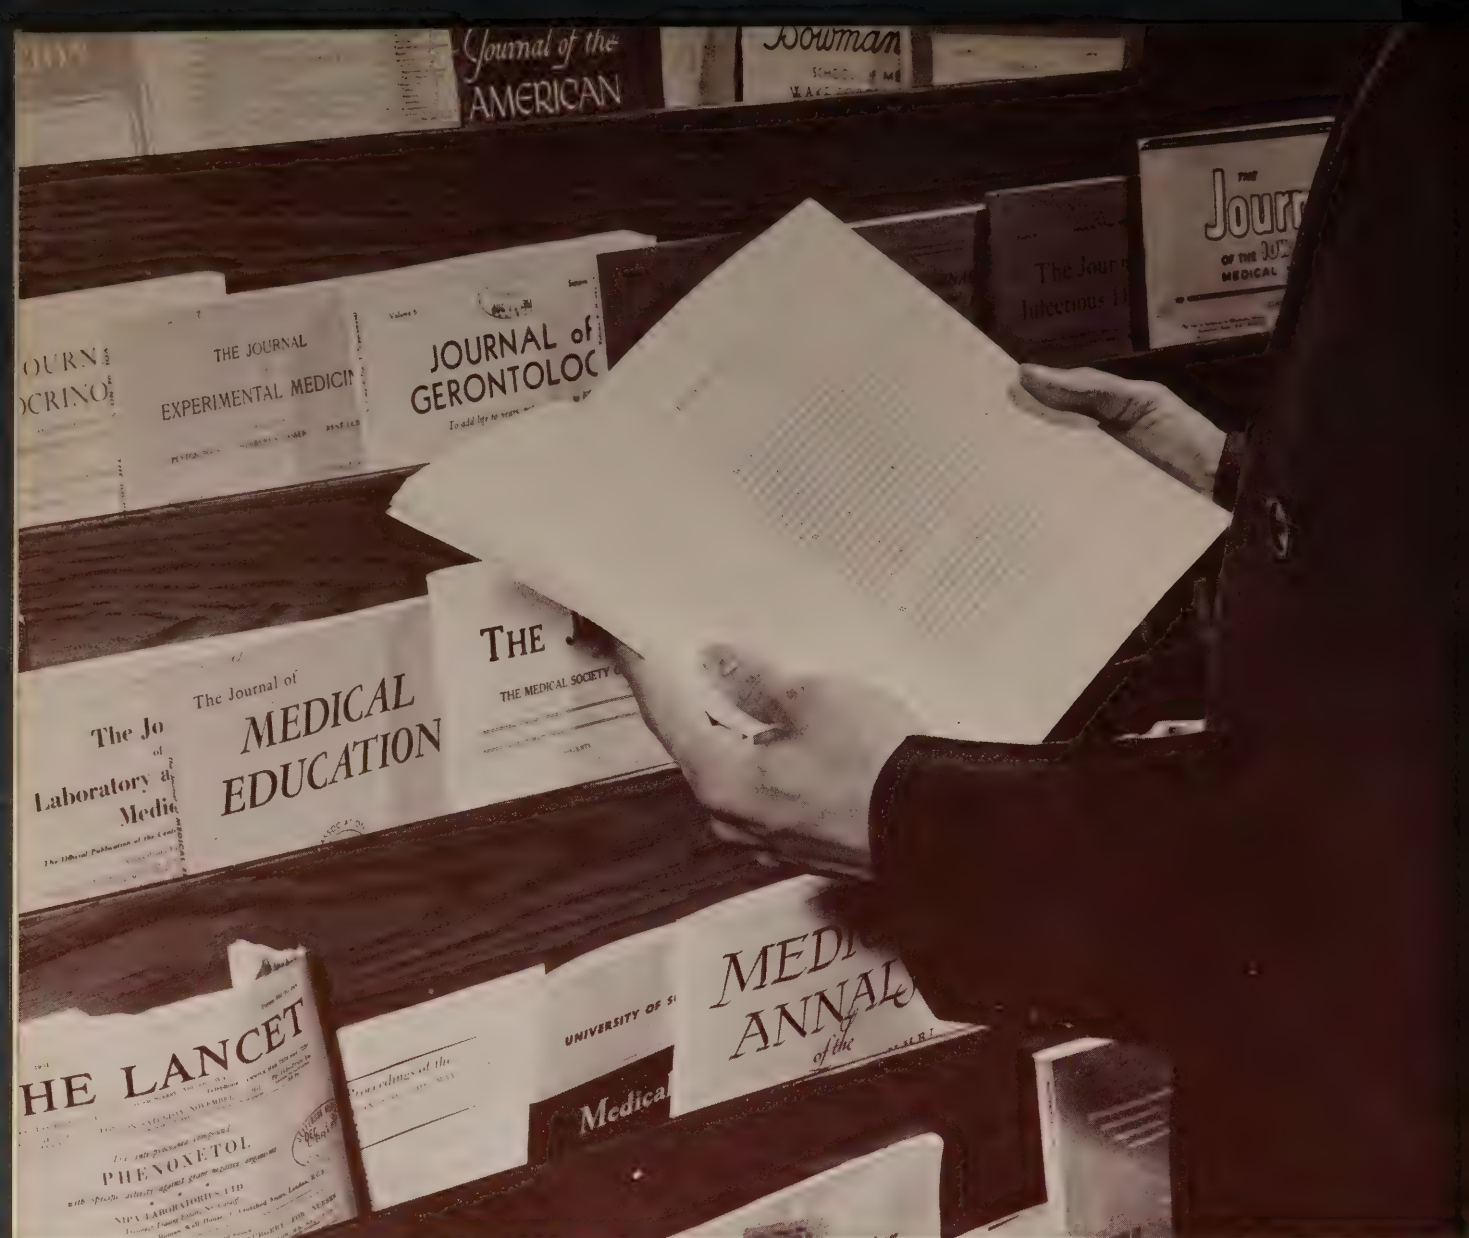

WITH THE ADDITION of this new 300-bed pavilion, occupying the block on Eleventh Street between Sansom and Walnut, Jefferson Medical College Hospital ranks as one of the largest in the nation. Corridors across Clinton Street connect the new building with Thompson Annex.

Observation galleries for Jefferson students have been provided in several operating rooms. Removal of these rooms from the old Main Hospital will permit more class and demonstration rooms in the old building. The radiological and clinical laboratories will enhance the teaching facilities for students, interns and residents.

With approximately 1,100 beds, exclusive of those at Barton Memorial and White Haven Sanatorium, Jefferson Medical College Hospital will rank among the top three or four hospitals in the United States. Hospitals of this size, integrated with a medical college, attract the most eminent members of the medical profession, provide more cases for clinical teaching, concentrate more scientific equipment, and serve a wider area than community hospitals lacking the advantages of a great medical center.

THE SAMUEL PARSONS SCOTT MEMORIAL LIBRARY

THE COLLEGE LIBRARY, founded in 1898, and containing over 30,000 volumes plus more than 500 journals currently received, is said to be the largest collection of medical literature in Philadelphia between the Schuylkill and Delaware Rivers on Walnut Street. Many private collections are now possessed by the Library, among which is the Bland collection of over 4,000 volumes which includes the only known Philadelphia copy of The Girdle of Chastity, by Dingwall.

DIPLOMA OF THE JEFFERSON MEDICAL COLLEGE OF PHILADELPHIA

To all who shall see these writings, greetings;

Forasmuch as academic degrees were instituted to the intent that men endowed with learning and wisdom should be distinguished from others by honors, to the end that this might be profitable to them, and also that the industry of others might be stimulated and the exercise of virtue and the liberal arts be increased among men:

And as the fullest rights conferred publicly by diploma in our College have this end chiefly in view.

Therefore, be it known, that we, the President and the Professors of Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, have created and constituted a Doctor in the Art of Healing _____, An honorable man, endeared to us by correct morals and all those virtues which adorn every good man; who also by his excellent knowledge of medicine as well as of surgical art, acquired by him in our College, and manifested more fully in an examination publicly held by us, has shown himself worthy of the fullest academic honors.

To the one thus referred to, we have by virtue of this diploma most freely and fully granted and confirmed all the rights, honors and privileges belonging to the degree of Doctor in the Art of Medicine, among ourselves, and all nations.

In evidence of which let this diploma, signed in our handwriting, and having appended the seal of the College, be a testimonial.

Given in our medical hall, in the city of Philadelphia, on the _____ day of _____ in the year of human salvation

_____, and in the _____ year of the sovereign power of the United States of America.

President of Jefferson Medical College and Medical Center.

To the Class of 1952:

DURING THE FOUR YEARS you young men have spent studying the art of medicine at Jefferson, I know you have absorbed some of this old Institution's traditions.

ONE OF THESE TRADITIONS is that Jefferson men are highly qualified on completing their undergraduate medical training, to increase their knowledge of medicine through internship, residency and later professional careers.

A CLOSE STUDY of the history of our outstanding graduates indicates that their success and growth in the profession was due not only to their professional attainments but to their high regard for the welfare of the community and nation.

IN THESE TROUBLED TIMES, reflecting the uncertainties of the nation's future, you will be faced with new problems, which must be solved in the light of our traditions of liberty, free enterprise, and the worship of God, which have made us a great nation among nations.

IT IS JEFFERSON'S HOPE that you will live up to the high trust imposed upon you by your education, and your special fitness to serve your country, as well as to the individuals who will seek your services as a physician.

IN THIS WAY YOU CAN justify the faith and labors of your forebears, who struggled to preserve and to leave to you a great inheritance.

Very sincerely,
J. L. KAUFFMAN
PRESIDENT

To the Class of 1952:

AS YOU LEAVE JEFFERSON you will enter a world and a profession equally beset with uncertainty, changes, and problems difficult to solve. While students—endeavoring to gain superior skill in the art and science of medicine—you have come to know these difficulties, both within and without your profession. In the future the solution of these problems will be made possible, in part, to your class and its contemporaries as leaders in your profession and community.

AT JEFFERSON WE HAVE prepared you with all the resources of knowledge at our command; we have sought to equip you with all the accoutrements needed for this battle of life and death which you must wage unceasingly; if you will use them wisely, the result to you will be the victory; but the final outcome will rest with you; your integrity, your skill, and your willingness to work will be the decisive factors.

REMEMBER THAT COMMENCEMENT Exercises are precisely that; the beginning of your professional life. Your graduation marks merely the end of a phase; a period of preparation, your diploma being a passport to a new world of responsibility, opportunity and effort. The Oath of Hippocrates, taken as you graduate, is the chart by which you will plot your course. It is a living oath, and pursuance of its principles and practice of its precepts will bring to you the respect and love of your community. This cannot be emphasized too strongly.

YOU ARE NOW EQUIPPED with the fundamental knowledge of your profession and according to the old axiom "practice makes perfect." You will find that your skill will grow greater each year in proportion to the zealous use you will make of all that you have learned at Jefferson.

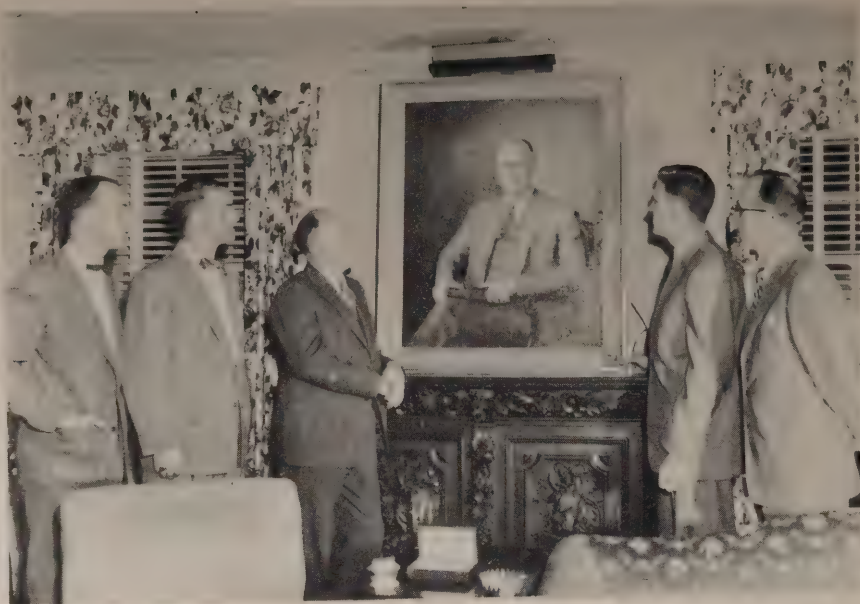

OUR WARMEST CONGRATULATIONS go to you for your present attainments. May your future bring continued success and happiness to you, healing and comfort to your fellow man, and pride and distinction to your Alma Mater; that she may say with joyous voice: "These are My Sons."

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE A. BENNETT
DEAN

GEORGE ALLEN BENNETT, A.B., M.D., Sc.D., LL.D.

Dean

DAVID M. DAVIS was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1886, was educated in the public schools there, at Princeton University, and the Medical School of Johns Hopkins picking up Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Omega Alpha keys along the way. After a year of internship at the Baltimore City Hospital, he became Assistant in Pathology at Hopkins for two years (1913-1914), and then Pathologist and Director of Research of the Brady Urological Institute (1914-1917). In this period he was Associate Editor of the Journal of Urology at the time of its foundation (1917).

The outbreak of the war in 1914 found Dr. D. studying chemistry in Munich. In 1915 he served as Bacteriologist to the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly-sur-Seine, France. After attending the Citizens Training Camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., he was sent abroad as First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps where he served for two years, at first attached to the British Army and later with the A.E.F., and rose to the rank of Major.

Back at the Brady Institute he spent a year in research on the gonococcus, completed a residency in Urology and then spent two years preparing the manuscript of the "Practice of Urology" of which he is co-author with Hugh H. Young. In 1924 he was appointed Head of Urology at the New Medical School of the University of Rochester where he organized the department. In 1928 he resigned to return to Baltimore. In 1930 he went to Phoenix, Arizona, where he practiced until 1935 when he was called to Jefferson.

At this time the Department of Genito-Urinary Diseases became known as the Department of Urology, and with Dr. Davis' appointment a new era was ushered in. The system of teaching was modified by the gradual reduction of didactic lectures and the introduction of instruction in small groups with emphasis on student participation. Quiz sessions were always memorable occasions, the Master assuming an authoritative stance at the front of the room wielding a long pointer to designate his victims and verbally fencing with a skillful mixture of invective and cajolery until the point was driven home.

Dr. Davis' many contributions to the field of Urology in general and the department at Jefferson in particular are too numerous to cite here, but the keenness of mind and intellectual integrity exemplified by his teaching have been sources of stimulation that Jefferson can ill afford to lose.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITARY SCIENCE AND TACTICS

RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS

The Department of Military Science and Tactics is primarily interested in preparing Doctors of Medicine to act in a Military or civilian capacity in times of National emergency.

During the advanced course the ROTC students receive a substantial monetary allowance. Upon completion of the course they are commissioned in the Army or Air Force Medical Reserve.

"Little black sheep who have lost our way . . ."

IT WAS SEPTEMBER 11, 1948, The beery strains of the Wiffenpoof song and the dire warnings from potential fraternity brothers of an ensuing fate worse than death were still ringing in our ears and did little to assuage our feelings of apprehension as we climbed the steps of the Daniel Baugh Institute. The world we were leaving was little more secure than that we were entering. It was the fifth month of the Berlin blockade, Truman was starting westward after "giving-em-hell" in Toledo, while Dewey was "as good as elected," and the Indians, Yankees, and Red Sox were in a three-way tie for the American league pennant.

We were indeed little black sheep. Why did we want to be doctors, we were asked, and as we lost ourselves in posterior triangle of the neck this seemed to be a very good question. Dr. Bennett had a habit of asking questions. "Why don't you know, doctah?" was a favorite. After that one it was a positive relief to hear Dr. Ramsay suavely discuss a subtle invagination of the ectoderm. A fading memory affords only an occasional glimpse now. . . . Dr. Michels (whom we took to be the janitor the first day), rotating the gut . . . a breathless and almost interminable dissertation by Dr. Bates . . . long October afternoons spent in anticipation of 6 p.m. and a couple of quick beers at Chassey's (they were on the house the first week — remember?). We were still on the head and neck when Cleveland took the series from the Braves, and we had just gotten to the thorax when Truman made liars of the experts and was relaxing in Key West by the time we had gotten to the abdomen.

The pace quickened after the holidays — there was that last frenzied scramble down the lower extremity — and then finals. China was collapsing, a new nation, Israel, was being created, atomic bombs were exploding at Bikini — but of these things we were only dimly aware. The lymphatic drainage of the breast, the course of the lingual nerve, 22-12-11, development of the urogenital ridge, crypts of Lieberkuhn—these and hundreds of other bits of information swirled in a jumbled confusion and swept all other thoughts from our minds. Somehow we were able to sort and arrange these things with a semblance of order in the tense, inhospitable atmosphere of the final exam. Three weeks later had taken neuroanatomy more or less in stride emerging with mixed feelings of accomplishment (so much was forgotten already), and even greater respect for Dr. Bennett.

Then came a brief, lost weekend, and the opening of the second half-year. This was not so bad, except that such matters as the Krebs Cycle, Henderson-Hasselbach equation, entero-hepatic circulation, and many other manifestations of the modus operandi of the human organism kept coming to our attention. The midterm exam represented a rude awakening to those of us who had yielded to the soporific effect of the warm spring afternoons and Dr. Cantarow's lectures. After a few weeks we were accustomed to the laboratory routine — hunt the reagents, get the experiment done, and fudge the results.

The other half of the double feature was Physiology. If the whole year had been as tough as Wagman's opening lectures on neurophysiology, there would have been blood on the saddle for sure. We were delighted to learn that the brightness of a deep shade in the woods at night was 0.0000005 foot-lamberts. Dr. Thomas' calm, solid lectures, the backbone of the course, came after that. Later in the year the department unveiled its secret weapon — Dr. Friedman, who conducted us through the bowels of the bowels. His jokes were worth a small fortune in pithed frogs. Not everybody knows (or cares), as much as he about mastication, or the cubic capacity of the human appendix. Dr. Conley pleased all by mimeographing his notes on aviation medicine. Dr. Crider shone as brightly as always. In the physiology laboratory it was always a question as to which would be finished first — the experiment or the animal. We experimented on ourselves, too. The instructions would say, with quiet humor, "With a blunt instrument touch the back of the pharynx. Describe the responses — from a safe distance." By the time finals came Cortisone had taken the spotlight as the latest wonder drug, and Rita Hayworth had got her Khan in Paris, showing that she too was still making her way through life.

We spent the summer in approximately 150 different ways. The Berlin airlift ended in victory, but at home the Hiss-Chambers controversy and the Coplon trial revealed a certain amount of dry rot in the ship of state. As the fall term began, Truman announced that the Russians had the bomb, and the world felt a little uneasy.

"There's a long, long trail a-winding . . ."

With the rushing parties out of the way, we tackled the year that was supposed to be the toughest. Dr. Herbut's pathology lectures were planned as thoroughly as a well-run post mortem. Most of the lesions were large or small, hard or soft, and might assume almost any color. The nuclei were large and pale or small and dark, and could be round, square, or pretzel-shaped. By the time the course was finished he had given us a stack of notes as thick as the telephone directory of a second-class city. In the laboratory each had his own instinctive rules for distinguishing the slides. If it looked like a gland and had concretions, it was prostate; if it seemed to answer no particular description it was probably bronchiectasis. We recall Dr. Bricker's masterful dissertation on optics when he discovered the paper placed in his microscope three weeks before by big Joe McCloskey who later in the year gave his own remarkable lecture on the wrath of Pouchke. Dr. Lieber charmed all with his "continental" accent while telling of his series of one case of status thymicolymphaticus. Dr. Stasny endeared himself to everyone with his linguistic difficulties and by being such a thoroughly nice guy. To be remembered with equal affection is the picture of Colonel Davy Morgan, with the red-brown hair sharply demarcated from the surrounding gray, extracting another specimen from the crock, and starting off the discussion with those immortal words — "Now today, boys." Later in the year came the hunt for misprints ("metaphysics of the long bones") in Herbut's Surgical Pathology.

At the same time we began our exploration of the Lilliputian world of Pasteur, Koch, and Goodner. We have not the space to go into all of Dr. Goodner's attributes — world traveler, friend of man, raconteur, philosopher, man against death. His laboratory was "not just a convenient place to follow 'cook-book' directions under supervision," but "a friendly and informal meeting ground where problems can be discussed with more experienced persons."

Some of the problems we discussed were the bacteriology of a cake of ice and the probable state of Santa Claus' serology. Dr. Sawitz delighted us with tales of the more intimate aspects of the life of an intestinal fluke and the bold meanderings of the Dracunculus medinensis. And our first lectures in physical diagnosis by Dr. Charr reminded us that some day we would be allowed to practice on warm-blooded, breathing, human patients.

More of us were able to watch the series that fall—television had really arrived—and the Yankees re-established an old habit by winning it from the Dodgers in five games.

In February the "Missouri" went aground in the Chesapeake, while we floundered on the rocks and shoals of Pharmacology. We learned about the calabar bean, Pilocarpus jaborandi, ouabain, priscot, and yohimbin from Dr. Gruber. For one plant, Nicotiana tabacum, Dr. Gruber had no use whatever. He had known Perry Burger, who had caused a rattlesnake to stiffen and die with a well-aimed jet of tobacco juice, and then there was Fred Dietz, another slave to Lady Nicotine, who came to an untimely end while straining at stool. Rabbits who smoked got arteriosclerosis

(rabbits shouldn't smoke, anyway), and besides, smoking is only a depraved form of fire worship. Gruber kept us up to date on the labors of Gilligan, Gonigle, and Blumgart, not to mention that reliable quartet of Gold, Quint, Ott, and Fox. We also remember the laboratory talks, punctuated by the sounds that rabbits make when they are being rabbits.

Dr. Hodges kept us toeing the mark in his Clinical Laboratory course. We learned what it is like to be on the receiving end of a venipuncture, and that swallowing a Rehfuß tube is not as easy as Dr. Adams tried to demonstrate it was. A jot of Neuropathology painlessly administered by Dr. Forster and a tittle of Psychiatry from Dr. Keyes rounded out the term.

Once exams were out of the way we had reached the point halfway to our goal, with a wonderful summer to look forward to. But the distant future seemed to grow constantly darker. Scientists wondered whether radioactive dusts from a hydrogen bomb might destroy life on Earth, and on June 25th the 38th parallel was violated by 75,000 North Koreans. Soon our troops were in action; the cold war had become febrile.

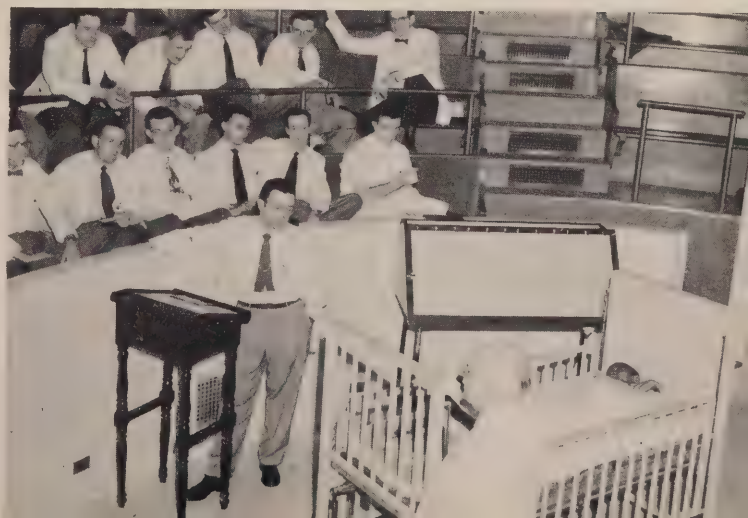

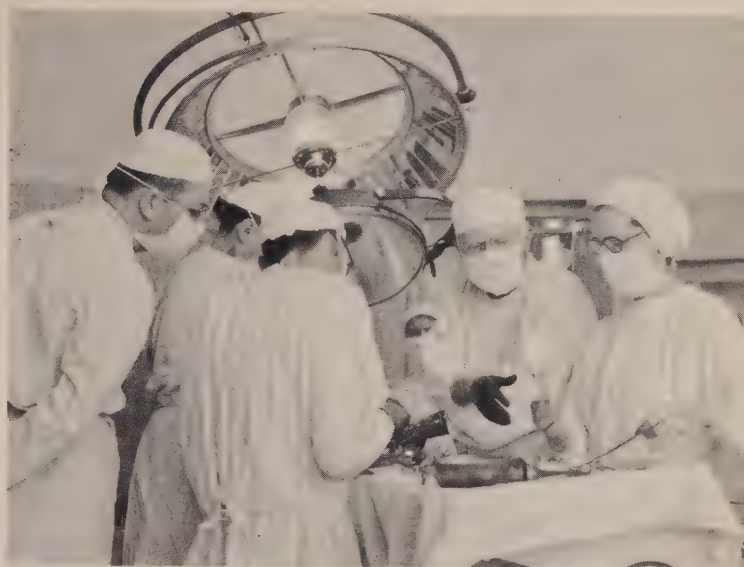

"Oh, we will sing . . . of Lydia Pinkham . . ."

Somewhere along the line Jefferson had taken an Admiral on board. From his paneled, deep-carpeted, brand new bridge he was soon issuing directives to the maintenance staff for a clean sweepdown, fore and aft. The brass fixtures in the College were polished daily. True to the traditions of the sea, even the heads did not escape his attention. As the fall term opened he predicted dire consequences for the assembled student body if the R.O.T.C. enrollment did not increase. At that time the U.N. forces, crowded into the Pusan beach-head, were about to break out in a drive to the north.

We were introduced to the semi-block system that was the rule in the last two years — clinics and the various services in the morning, and lectures in the afternoon. In his Thursday pit, which for seniors represented another form of "periodic disease," Dr. Reimann established a high standard of academic medicine. To the student who was so careless as to say, "You get a fever," would come the acrimonious reply, "I don't get a fever." Though sometimes accused of therapeutic nihilism, Dr. Reimann would not deny the value of a mustard plaster and whiskey for simple respiratory ailments. During one of our Tropical Medicine lectures we were reminded to keep one eye peeled for hemoglobinuria in the month of March. Early in the year came those soporific sessions with soothe 'em or shock 'em Schmidt.

In October the Yankees swept the series from the Fightin' Phillies, who had captured the pennant on the very last day of the season. On November 1st a Puerto Rican nationalist tried to kill the President, but Truman survived to write that ornery letter to the Washington Post critic who had panned Margaret's singing. On the 24th the U.N. forces who had been mopping up the North Koreans were suddenly faced with hordes of Chinese Reds pouring across the Yalu river, and after some desperate fighting around the Chanjin reservoir were soon forced back to the 38th parallel.

The Obstetrics lectures introduced us to Dr. T. L. Montgomery's calm, unhurried staff. We learned that there are some things that should not be rushed — better sit down and smoke another cigar than to use forceps too soon. Dr. Castallo, the Little Flower, provided the entertainment, demonstrating how to jam an inverted uterus back into place with a sweep of his clenched fist and using his old Homberg hat routine to illustrate the mechanisms of delivery. Few will forget the anxious moments spent on the old freight elevator between the 3rd and 14th floors exhorting our patients to "pant like a little puppy-dog." Uncle Lou Scheffey was the mainstay of the Gyne team that was currently scoring a 47% cure rate in carcinoma of the cervix.

In our Surgery pits we heard for the first time those deathless words, "Now, stop right there, Dr. Manges. I have asked this patient to come down because he brings us a very important message." Whereupon Tom the Great would pound the tiles several times with his left hand. Similarly, the words "Where are we now, Mervine?" could have been spoken only by Dr. Lemmon. On the Applied Anatomy service we tried valiantly to sew the aponeurosis of the external oblique down to the shelving margin of Poupart's ligament, using the original instruments and needles employed by the Army surgeons at the Battle of Antietam. Then there was the hectic night before the final when the exam questions didn't come through until 9 p.m.

Among other courses, there was Urology — Dr. Davis' final year. We marveled at the department's flowmeter, that would have delighted Rube Goldberg, and the keenness of mind and sharpness of wit that characterized our retiring professor. Dr. Bauer extolled the virtues of the Kiddie-Koop and steel shanked shoes. For pneumonia, we were to prescribe rest, potassium citrate, brandy, and, to please the parents, a little penicillin. Dr. Decker's Dermatology had us trying to name the author of "Journeys into Divers Places," and to expound on the significance of $E = mc^2$. In Proctology clinic we learned how to use the proctoscope and smoke a cigar at the same time without getting ashes into the field. Dr. Haskell's final was a dream come true; if you didn't understand a question Dr. Haskell would explain it by giving you the answer.

As all fouled-up things must, our third year came to an end. That spring we had watched the greatest show yet on television, the Kefauver hearings. The operations of bookies, basketball fixes, and West Point scandal were said to mark the general deterioration of the country's moral fiber. In April the dismissal of General MacArthur gave rise to a month of parades and receptions, and a memorable speech before Congress that gave Vaughn Monroe a fresh hit song—"Old Soldiers Never Die."

That summer more of us had to work, because more of us were married and many of us had given a convincing demonstration of fertility. In July, a Douglas Skyrocket set a new record of 1300 miles an hour and a remodeled V-2 rocket carried five monkeys 135 miles into the stratosphere while back on earth man continued his ancient struggle against himself on the bloody ground of "Heartbreak Ridge."

*"I'll be seeing you
In all the old familiar places . . ."*

We had to return for classes late in August, as Jefferson's first Disaster Course reared its ugly head. For two weeks we were bombarded with high velocity verbiage, which alternately horrified and sedated us. We studied heat, blast, and radiation, and were baffled by such concepts as "spin" and "secular equilibrium." If we remembered nothing else, Dr. Eberhart wanted it understood that the course was not his idea.

After that was over, we got down to business. In many respects the final year was much like the preceding one, except that it seemed to pass much more rapidly. One of the more memorable moments came early in December when, out of an apparently clear sky, Dr. Reimann announced his resignation. The somewhat contradictory rumors quickly made the rounds. There were tales of intrigue, clandestine meetings, and mass resignations, but efforts of reconciliation the clash of personalities was too great. The department carried on under the quadrumvirate of Rehfuß, Duncan, Tocantins, and Jones. The Thursday pits promptly became less entertaining if not less informative than before.

That fall the Yankees kept right on winning, this time from the Giants in six games. On October 25th Churchill made his comeback, and a few weeks later the Democrats took over City Hall for the first time in 72 years.

When Dr. Shallow was at a loss for words he could always have projected that slide of the relations of the gall bladder and pancreas.

There was the day when Dr. Manges caught the plastic fish on the pointer and his boss had to cut it down for him. We felt that the Ob-Gyne Sunrise Service was expendable but the clinic work in those departments was well worth while. Dr. Swenson made it clear that he did not want to be known as an "X-ray man" because, "You wouldn't call an internist a medicine man." Tony DePalma showed us how to handle the orthopedic patient, especially the young ones, and Dr. Gibbon set a high standard of what a surgeon should be.

In February, the man who made ordinari-ness shine, King George, died suddenly in his sleep. A few weeks later, an old landmark, the Clinton Hotel, was gutted by fire while a new one began to take shape as pile drivers and shovels started work on Jefferson's 300 bed addition. March the 17th we gathered somewhat nervously in the auditorium to learn how our internship fate had been sealed by the highly controversial I.B.M. machine.

From the first beer at Chassey's to the last pin-ball game at Lyle's it has been a memorable four years. Although the future is uncertain, it is possible to predict with reasonable certainty that there will be another presidential election in the fall. From here it looks like Taft, Ike, or Kefauver. Presidents come and go, but a doctor goes on until he has had one coronary too many.

And now we must be going.

TO THESE THE WIVES OF THE CLASS OF '52

TO THESE, THE WIVES OF THE CLASS OF '52:

For the hours of restriction and rejoicing, reproach and reassurance; the days of delight and despondence, deprivation and discernment; the years of love and loveliness, laughter, and loneliness that comprise medical college marriage;

For being ever tolerant in our perplexities;

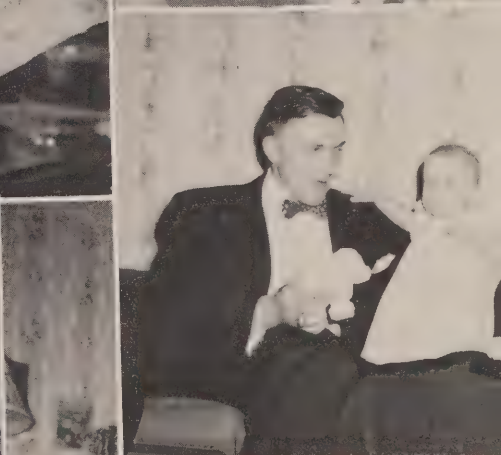

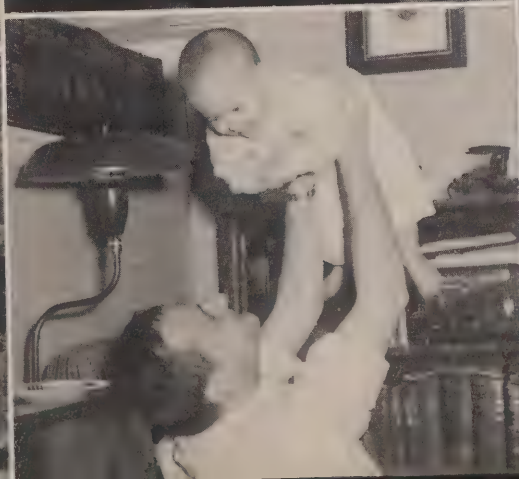

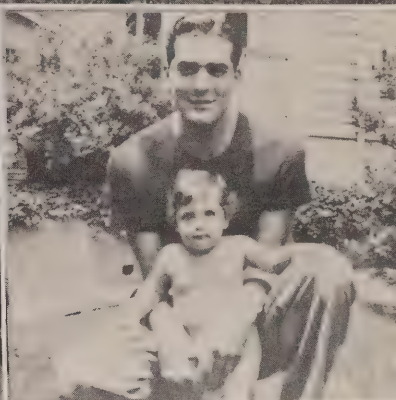

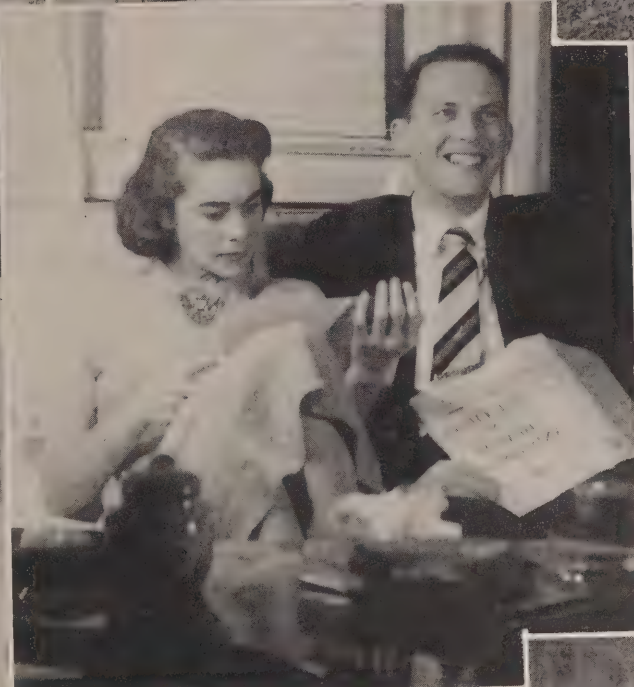

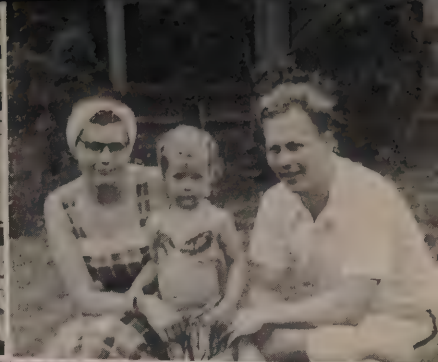

For never regarding our future with doubt;

We offer this page in humble recognition of that which has gone before, and in simple dedication to that which is yet to be . . .

ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA Honor Medical Society is the only organization of its type in medical schools of this and neighboring countries. It was founded on August 25, 1902, by William W. Root, then a junior medical student at the University of Illinois. Jefferson was among the first medical schools in the country to acknowledge and establish a chapter in this unique society. The Jefferson chapter (Pennsylvania Alpha) was founded in 1903 and is the fifth oldest among 61 chapters now active.

The aims of Alpha Omega Alpha are the awakening and encouragement of scientific medical interest and endeavor. The fraternity also strives to develop a higher sense of moral integrity, wholesomeness of thought and morality of action among students of medicine. The chief requisite of membership is true high scholarship in its broadest sense. This carries with it the concept of certain qualities which, when translated into future achievements, spell success and realization of the grand ideals of medicine.

THE PURPOSES OF THE BAUER SOCIETY are 1) to stimulate interest in Pediatrics and provide students with supplemental sources of information, and 2) to preserve a place in the medical profession for breast feeding, uncanned baby food, tea enemas, and the Republican Party. Meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at the Nu Sigma Nu House. First on the order of business is the reading of the scripture by Brother Fulton Lewis Jr., from 7:00 to 7:15 (WIP). After the fourfold amen, Dr. Bauer introduces the guest speaker of the evening. The lecture follows, after which open discussion ensues. The problem discussed is usually inter-related with pediatrics and some other specialty so as to afford the student a point of view which could not otherwise be made available.

Since its origin in 1915, the Pediatric Society has been one of the more active organizations at Jefferson. The effects of the recent municipal elections on the Society remain to be seen.

IN FEBRUARY OF 1948 A GROUP OF STUDENTS gathered to organize what is today one of the most active organizations of its kind in the city—the Jefferson Psychiatric Forum. Though the Forum is a relatively young society on Jefferson's campus, it has made strides that rank it with the leaders in activity.

This Forum was founded with the object of studying, promoting and advancing the science of psychiatry and its allied branches among the undergraduate students of the Jefferson Medical College.

Since it was organized the Forum has very adequately fulfilled its objectives. Meetings have been held monthly and we have been fortunate to have as our guest speakers many eminent psychiatrists, who are affiliated with the various medical schools of the city and the mental institutions in this area.

IN JANUARY, 1899, THE FIRST PHYSIOLOGICAL SOCIETY was organized at Jefferson, in honor of Professor Henry C. Chapman. With the appointment of Dr. J. Earl Thomas as Professor of Physiology, in 1928, the organization assumed its present name.

The functions of the organization are to further the field of Physiology and to better acquaint its members with Physiology as it is applied to medicine.

Scheduled meetings are held during the year, at which time members of the faculty and guest speakers discuss various topics which supplement the subjects in the medical curriculum. These discussions, which are open to the general student body, are followed by a business and social meeting for the members of the society.

THE HARE MEDICAL SOCIETY is one of the oldest organized student societies at Jefferson. It was founded, as its name implies, in honor of one of Jefferson's great men, Dr. Hobart Amory Hare, Professor of Therapeutics, Materia Medica and Diagnosis from 1891-1931. The purpose of this society is to offer to the members of the Junior and Senior classes discussions upon subjects which, although not included in the regular school curriculum, are of importance to the future practitioners of medicine.

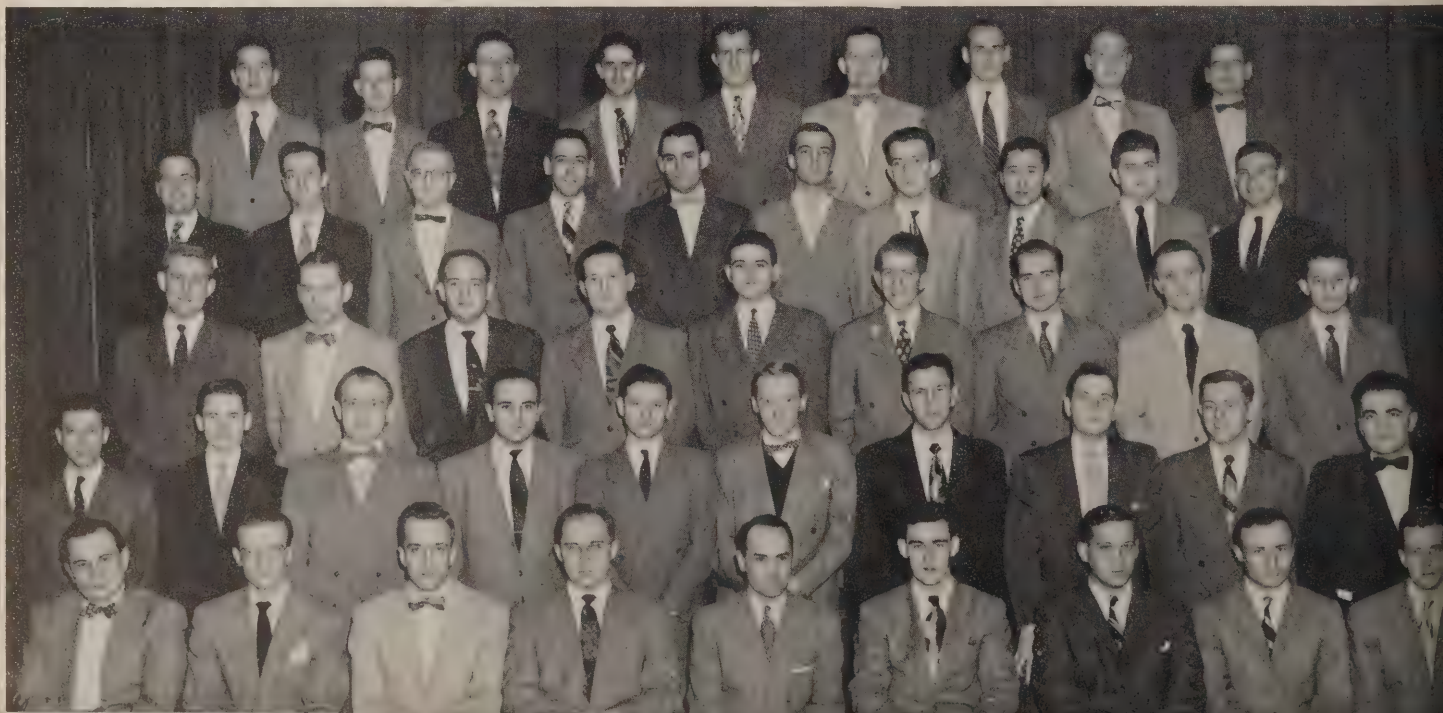

During this year, the society was again honored in having as its sponsors Drs. Martin E. Rehfuess and Alison H. Price. Franklin B. Peck, Jr., and P. Victor Sencindiver of the senior class did much to assure the society having a successful year through their planning and programs and social events.

THE FIRST STUDENT COUNCIL at Jefferson had its conception in the autumn of 1947. With the aid of Drs. Scheffey, Bennett, Goodner, and Swenson, the basic fundamentals of student organization and government were formulated and the student council became a reality. Since its conception, the council has endeavored to maintain itself as a voice of the students and act as a liaison body between the students and the faculty.

The functions of the council include the organization of class elections, the promotion of athletic activities, the regulation of societies, the recommendations for school improvements, the aiding in maintaining an adequate student health program, and the sponsoring of many school entertainments. As it is generally known, many of these functions have been fulfilled in the past and it is sincerely hoped that they can continue so in the future.

The council would like to remind all students that they are welcome to attend its meetings and express their views or make recommendations through the student suggestion box in the basement of the college.

ON FEBRUARY 12, 1951, A NEW SOCIETY WAS CREATED at Jefferson; 237 members of all classes joined in ratifying the constitution of the Student American Medical Association, and thus became charter members of a new, nation-wide student organization. Students in over half of the country's medical schools organized similar societies at the same time.

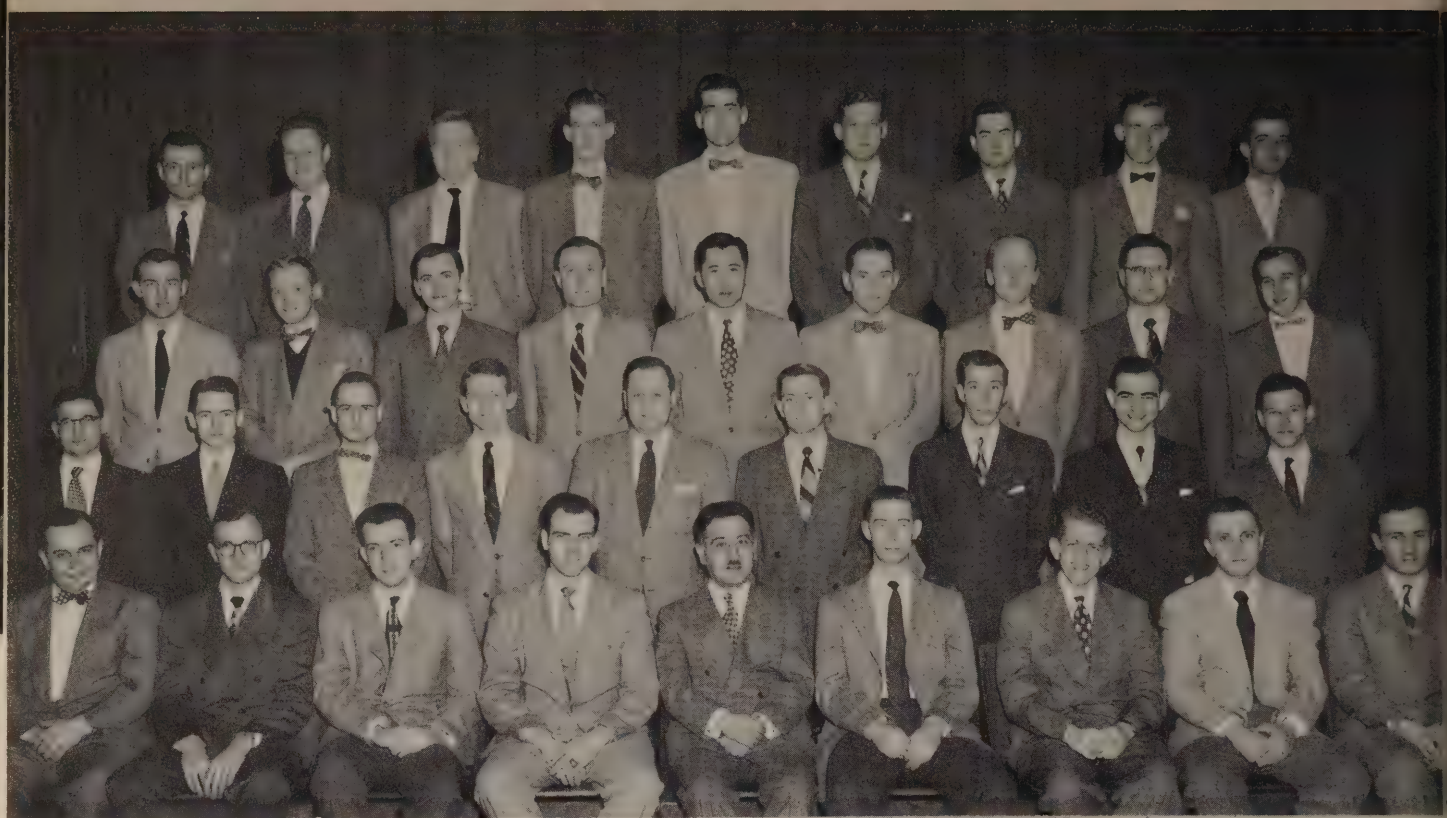

The objects of the organization are to advance the profession of medicine, to contribute to the welfare and education of medical students, to familiarize its members with the purposes and ideals of organized medicine, and to prepare its members to meet the social, moral, and ethical obligations of the profession of medicine.

The Jefferson society adopted as its primary goal that of helping the medical student to solve some of the problems he faces or will face in medical school, selection of an internship, post-graduate training, and early years of practice. The society has begun its efforts to reach this goal through a planned program of speakers and committee activities. As succeeding years pass, and new members have opportunity to expand the projects and contribute new ideas, the organization will undoubtedly grow correspondingly in value to medical students at Jefferson.

Legislative policy of the national organization is formed by annual delegates from each medical school to the House of Delegates of the Student A.M.A. The local society may also turn for aid and advice to the county and state medical societies, for which purpose advisors have been appointed.

Student support during the early months of the organization's life has been considerable, and has been especially appreciated by those charged with the responsibility of advancing the society from a promise to an actuality.

IN 1924 THERE WAS A BANDING TOGETHER of 22 medical students who felt that the lighter side of life should not be completely subjugated to the rigors of a medical education. They formed a group that had the simple premise of promoting good fellowship and sociability among themselves . . . and thus conceived Kappa Beta Phi Social Fraternity. Growing and prospering through the years, in this function, it has become one of the larger and more active groups in the College, making up its membership with students from the junior and senior classes.

In 1933, as an outgrowth of its social activity, Kappa Beta Phi, under the guidance of Dr. Eli Saleeby, sponsored the first all college formal function in the annual Black and Blue Dance. It has been mainly through the efforts of Dr. Saleeby, who has been our active and conscientious Grand Swipe since 1938, that the proceeds from the Black and Blue have been directed to a useful channel, the Kappa Beta Phi Student Aid Fund, which was instituted in 1940 with the approval of the Board of Trustees of the College. The purpose of this fund is to provide aid to students needing financial assistance. The fund is reaching maturity and will soon be available to students of all classes.

THE PASTEUR SOCIETY is an organization embracing all the Catholic students and Doctors at Jefferson. It was originally a branch of the Catholic Physicians' Guild of Philadelphia until 1930 when it was sponsored by the local parish of St. John's Church. At this time it undertook its present title and has remained as such ever since.

The main purpose of the society is to give the Catholic students at Jefferson an organization in which the various medico-religious questions and doubts can be freely discussed under adequate and official sponsorship. In order to adequately fulfill this purpose the society meets the first Thursday of every month in the Society Room of the college and a guest speaker is engaged to speak on one of the various questions of a practical nature. Following this there is a period for questioning if need be and finally a short talk on medical ethics by the spiritual advisor is given.

The society enjoys a large membership and is one of the most active on the campus. In addition to the regular monthly meetings an Annual Communion Breakfast is held during Lent.

Gross Surgical Society

President.....LOUIS J. WAGNER
Vice-President.....THOMAS A. GARDNER
Secretary-Treasurer.....ALBERT WILKINSON

THE GROSS SURGICAL SOCIETY was organized in 1891 to promote discussion and interest in professional subjects, and was the first student society at Jefferson. The society was first named in honor of the great Jefferson surgeon, Dr. W. W. Keen, who throughout his lifetime participated in the activities of this group with a profound interest. After Dr. Keen's death, the name of the organization was changed to the John Chalmers DaCosta Surgical Society, and in 1937 at the suggestion of one of the present sponsors, Dr. Thomas A. Shallow, the organization came to be known as the Gross Surgical Society.

With the invaluable aid of Dr. James A. Server the society during the academic year sponsors guest speakers, motion pictures, and discussions concerning surgical subjects of current interest. These provide for a more keen interest and understanding of the field of surgery in order to better equip us for the practice of surgery and medicine.

Christian Medical Society

OFFICERS

President.....ROBERT EARLY
Vice-President.....JOHN GRASSE
Secretary.....ROBERT EBERSOLE

THE CHRISTIAN MEDICAL SOCIETY had its beginnings in 1931 when two students at Northwestern Medical School made it their practice to have a time of prayer and fellowship each day. From such a small start the organization soon grew until today it includes more than twenty official chapters with more destined to join in the coming months.

Our Christian responsibility continues while we are in medical school, and is clearly explained in the purposes of the society. These are: "to aid the Christian physician, medical student and others in the medical profession to gain the mutual strength, encouragement and blessings to be obtained in Christian fellowship; to discuss medico-spiritual problems; and to present a positive witness for our Savior Jesus Christ."

Jefferson's chapter of Christian Medical Society was one of the first in Philadelphia, and today, under the Christian leadership of Dr. Whitely it continues to grow and ever presents Christ's challenge to those of the medical profession.

THIS YEAR THE GLEE CLUB is enjoying its seventh Anniversary since it was founded in 1944 under the direction of Georgia K. Mowry. The Glee Club in reality is an outgrowth of the personality of the late Professor of Bacteriology, Dr. Randall C. Rosenberger, who in 1929, sensing a lack of Christmas spirit, invited his freshmen students into the Auditorium for an informal carol sing. Other students and faculty members were attracted to the hall by the singing and soon joined in. In the years to follow, Dr. Rosenberger's informal Christmas singing became increasingly popular, and in 1944, following Dr. Rosenberger's sudden death, those who had come to love him carried on the tradition in his memory by organizing the Glee Club. The year following, Dr. Freddy Wagner became the director and has been responsible for the growth of the organization and the planning of the subsequent Christmas programs.

ALPHA KAPPA KAPPA FRATERNITY was founded in 1888 by a group of 18 medical students at Dartmouth College. Twelve years later with ten active and ten honorary members, including Professor J. C. Wilson as Primarius, the Epsilon Chapter was formed at Jefferson.

The present residence, built on the site of the old Almshouse which was the scene of the reunion of the Arcadian sweethearts of Longfellow's "Evangeline," was purchased in 1921. Many immortal names in American medicine, such as Keen, Coplin, Dereum and DaCosta, have continued to maintain this historical heritage and high standards down to the present time.

NU SIGMA NU was founded at the University of Michigan in 1882. Two fraternities which were established in 1899 preceded Nu Sigma Nu at Jefferson. Rho Chapter appeared on the Jefferson "campus" in 1900 largely through the efforts of Dr. Randall C. Rosenberger, late Professor of Bacteriology. The present chapter house at 1106 Spruce Street has been in use since 1922.

The primary purpose of Nu Sigma Nu, along with the eight other fraternities is to serve as a functional unit in the integration of social activities of the college. The chapter is indebted to its alumni for their interest, support, and guidance — especially in this past year.

PHI ALPHA SIGMA paved the way for medical fraternities at Jefferson by establishing the Delta Chapter here in the year 1898. From that early beginning the Jefferson Chapter has produced over seven hundred physicians, among whom are such men as Jacob Da Costa, Ross Patterson, Warren Davis, Hobart Amory Hare, George Beardsly, Charles DeSchweinitz, and countless others whose only claim to fame is the honest and sincere practice of their profession.

The Chapter House is located at 313 South 10th Street and has undergone many improvements during the past two years. It has been within these walls that the present members have strived to prepare themselves academically, ethically, and socially for their future as doctors of medicine.

THE EMBRYO OF PHI BETA PI Medical Fraternity found its nidus at Western Pennsylvania Medical College in 1891 after fertilization there in Pittsburgh. With further differentiation and development there has now evolved a fraternal group boasting a membership of over 21,000 doctors and undergraduates from thirty-eight chapters.

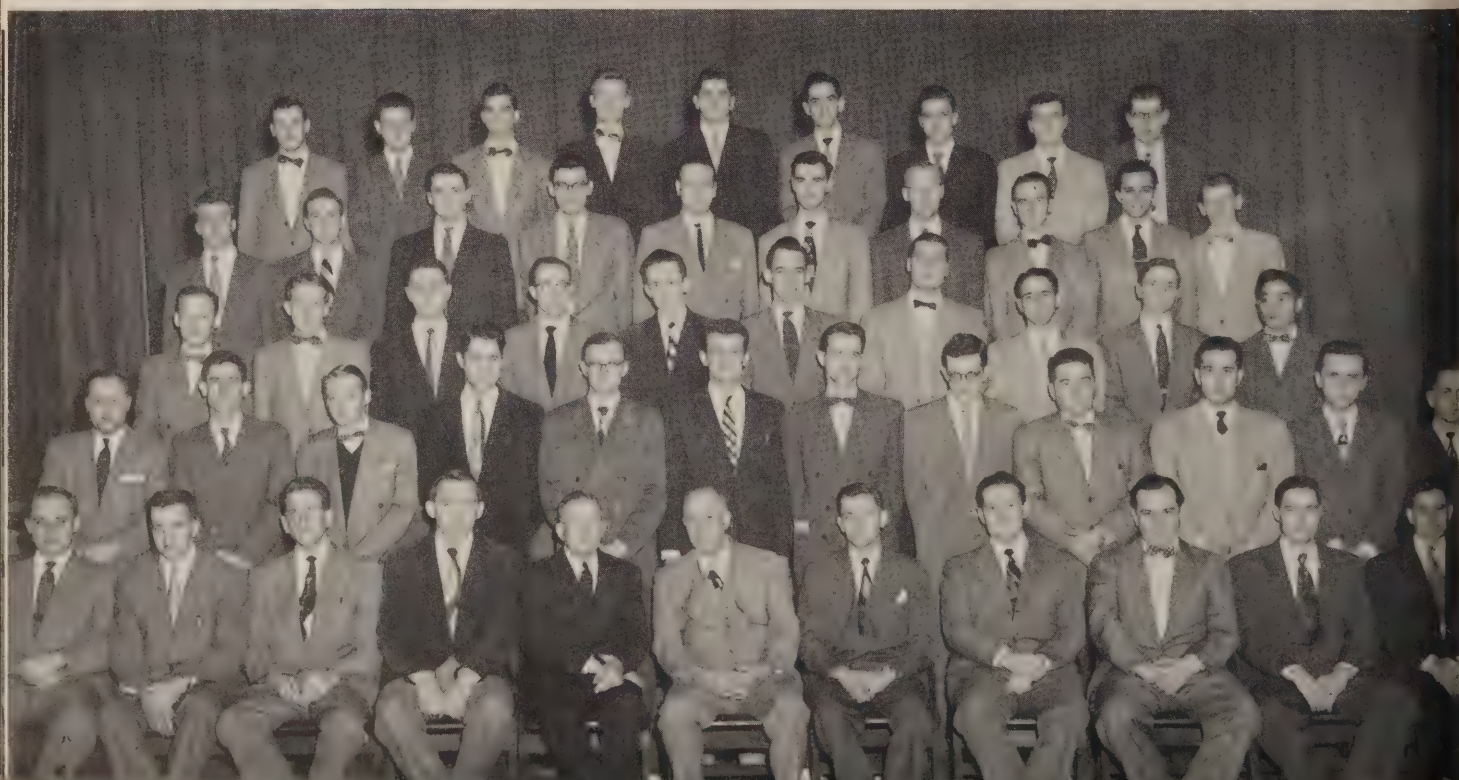

Eta Chapter was established at Jefferson on March 7, 1902. At first, odd meetings were held at the Odd Fellows Hall, but as things evened out, the members convened at 919 Spruce Street. The present chapter house has been located at 1032 Spruce Street since 1928.

CHI, THE JEFFERSON CHAPTER OF PHI CHI, largest of the national medical fraternities, was founded December 9, 1903. From a membership of twelve the first year Chi has grown in stature until now it is one of the largest at the institution.

In 1920, a forward looking group purchased the present spacious site on Spruce Street.

Chi is proud of its distinguished alumni on the Jefferson faculty and those serving other institutions of the medical art.

Fellowship, the scientific attitude, socio-cultural awareness, devotion to the ideals of the college — with these its members are imbued.

PHI DELTA EPSILON was organized in 1904 by several students from Cornell University. Today it is one of the largest medical fraternities in the world with 54 chapters and graduate clubs. Mu, the Jefferson chapter, was chartered in 1911. Extensive repairs over the past two years have made the fraternity house at 913 Spruce Street one of the most attractive on the campus.

Phi Delta Epsilon sponsors many scientific meetings and parties throughout the year and participates in two annual highlights each year — the five-chapter formal dance held with brother chapters in the city and the annual lectureship held at Jefferson.

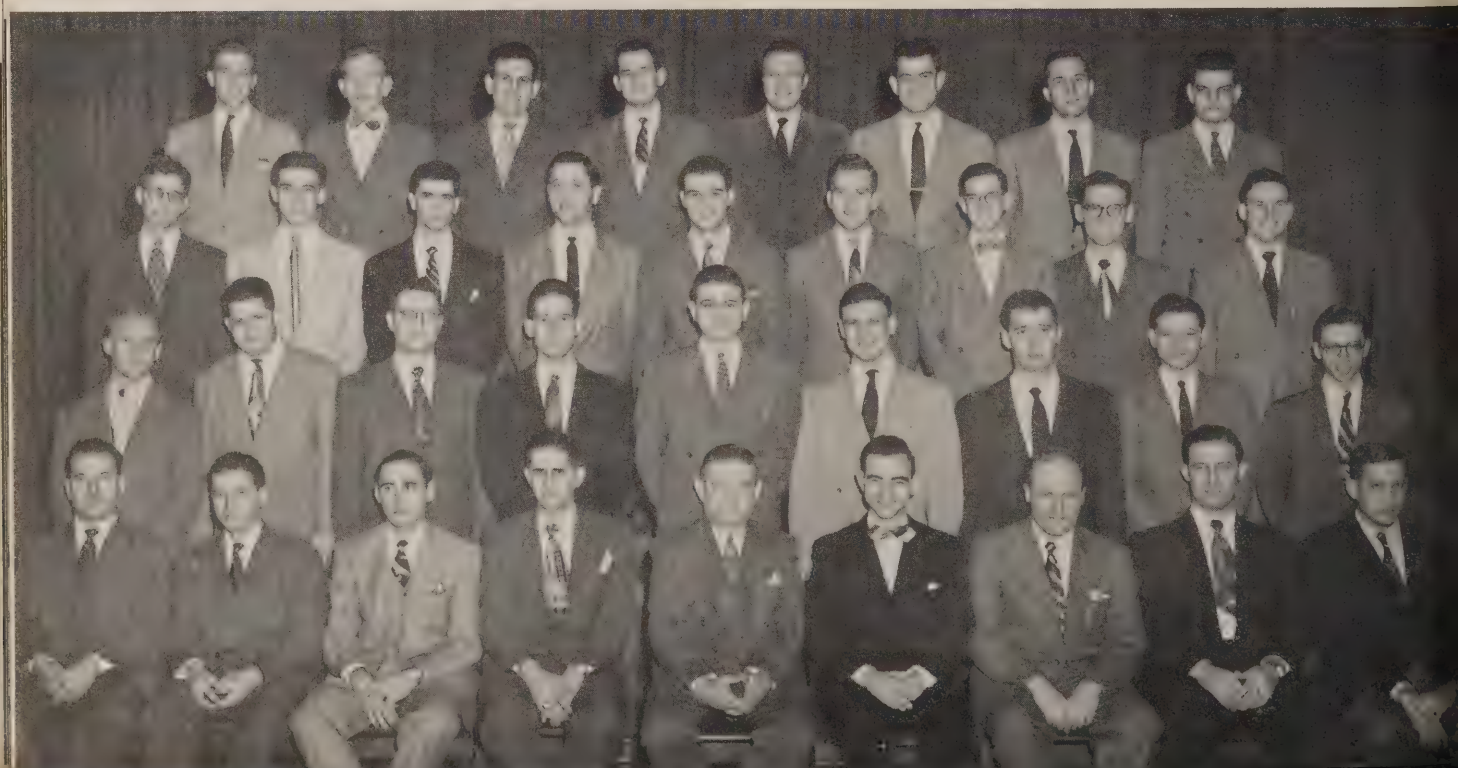

Today, as in the past, Mu chapter is dedicated to the betterment of mankind through medicine and to this end all its members strive.

THE NATIONAL FRATERNITY OF PHI RHO SIGMA was founded at Chicago in 1890 by Milbank Johnson, assisted by his friends, James Poling, H. H. Forline, T. J. Robeson, L. E. Bonn and O. O. Witherbee, all students of Northwestern University.

On February 27, 1905, Rho Chapter was granted its charter through the efforts of a group of Jefferson students composed of Sheldon, Murray, Chalker, Watson, Hannick, Talley, Ainsley, Garret, Shoenthal, O'Malley, Weiland and Ives.

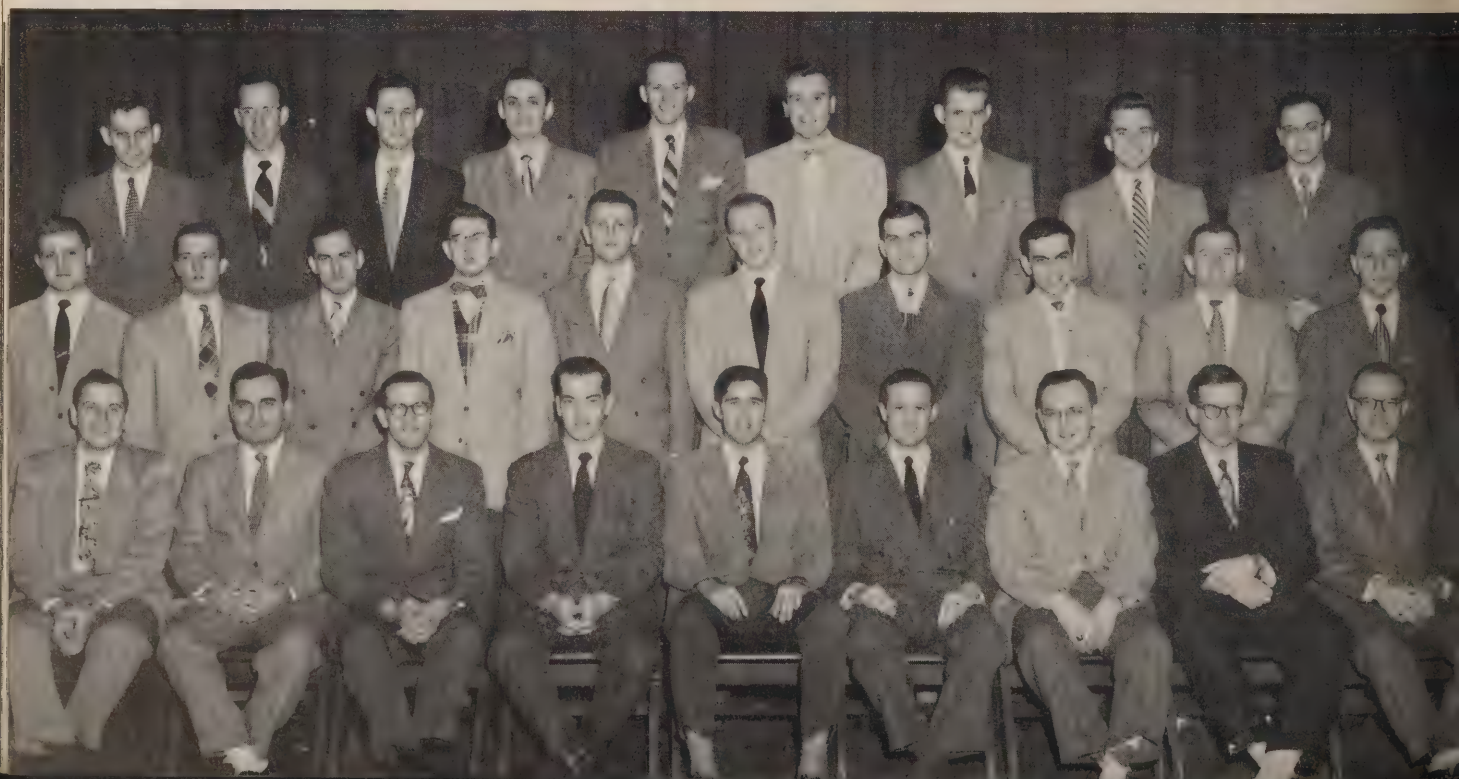

Its home today may be found in the peace and quiet of Clinton Street, a haven for scholars and gentlemen engaged in the arduous task of fitting themselves to be worthy of assuming the obligations and the cloak of a true follower of Hippocrates.

THE OLDEST EXISTING FRATERNITY of medical men, which was founded in 1879, is represented at Jefferson by its Beta Eta Chapter. Established here in 1912, the chapter has had homes on Spruce and Thirteenth Streets, and moved to its present location on quiet old Clinton Street in 1938. Alumni members of this chapter number well over five hundred and their vigorous support has resulted in the maintenance of a strong, active chapter throughout the years.

Beta Eta Chapter has always been proud of the reputations of the many leaders from within its group and of the friendly atmosphere of its home. From the most polished senior to the most harried freshman, we unanimously acknowledge our gratitude in being brothers of Theta Kappa Psi and students of Jefferson.

COUNTLESS "YEARBOOKS" ARE PUBLISHED each year, and the goal of each Editor is to make his book original, unusual, and interesting. When our staff first began creating this book, these were to have been the principles by which the book was to be written. We hope we have achieved all three. We began by choosing to do the printing in Offset instead of Letterpress, and selected Campus Publishing in the person of John Ursprung, Jr., to do the book. Mr. Max Merin did the senior portraits and the Society and Fraternity pictures. We were blessed with a congenial and capable staff from the beginning. All the photography, with the exception of Mr. Merin's was taken and processed under the supervision of Joe Matthews. All the art work in the book was done by Don Bittner. The "copy" throughout was assembled and written by four Associate Editors: Bill Crawford, Bob Eyerly, Bob Evans and Larry Cloud. The advertising section is the result of the efforts of chairman Rod Abbott, Nelson Aspen, and Bill Stepansky. Chairman Al Gould and Tom Gardner were in charge of circulation. And finally our business manager, Lyle Vincent, who counted each penny until it shone. We would like to give special thanks to Miss Irma Mellman from Campus Publishing, to the college office staffs, and to all our other friends too numerous to mention without whose contributions this book would not have been possible.

Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk

Smooth—better-tasting. Easier to digest. Carefully checked and tested to safeguard purity and freshness!

You can recommend this fine product with every confidence in its quality and dependability.

Easier to digest—Curd is broken up and evenly distributed.

Easily assimilated—400 USP units of vitamin D are added to aid in the utilization of calcium and phosphorus.

And everyone loves its rich delicious flavor!
